

FRV - KUDUS

Edition 10.1 June – July 2013

There's no mistaking that you have arrived some place exotic with Villa Kudus, located just over 100 metres from the beach in Berawa, Canggu. This villa has the East Indies written all over it and each of the rooms is a masterpiece filled with a mix of modern furnishings and Indonesian antiques and curios, crystal chandeliers and dynamic artwork.

Ever tried waking up under a massive high ceiling in an antique, traditional-Javanese inspired house in a super-comfortable king-size bed? Well, give it a try at Kudus and it will change your life – or at least the way you start your day. Everything about the villa is magnificent; from the vast and generous size of the bedrooms, living pavilion and garden, to the masses of antiques and quality furnishings, to its proximity to the beach.

The kitchen here is also a joy as both look at and cook in if you should feel the need, although with a great chef on call it would be a shame to not let yourself be waited upon. The five-bedroom villa may be both glamorous and highly comfortable with loads of space, but what Villa Kudus gives its guests is a real and unique sense of where they are in the world. Made up of traditional Javanese joglo structures, albeit with a contemporary touch, there is nothing generic about the place. The wooden shingle roof amplified the sound of the rain to the heights of content as we lay in the king-sized bed, pumping us to get up and get into the pool for a midnight swim in the rain; magical!

KUDUS KUDOS

As for location, the villa is far enough back from the beach and the main road to be as quiet as a church on a Monday morning, but close enough so that it only takes a couple of minutes to get there. The Legian Keraton Hotel, an old-school Bali favourite, is right there above the beach and is a solid place to eat a pizza, drink a few cold beers and watch the boys and girls ride their waves beneath a setting sun. The waves on the beach can be a bit rough but with ample adult supervision the kids should be in no danger.

Make sure you enjoy a massage from the ladies from the local spa who will come to the villa to administer to your needs right by the pool. For about 12 American dollars they will fall you into submission like you have never known – and for that they deserve a tip. ☺

www.villakudus.com

BALI VILLA

KUDUS KUDOS

There's no mistaking that you have arrived some place exotic with Villa Kudus, located just over 100 metres from the beach in Berawa, Canggu.

This villa has the East Indies written all over it and each of the rooms is a masterpiece filled with a mix of modern furnishings and Indonesian antiques and curios, crystal chandeliers and dynamic artwork.

Ever tried waking up under a massive high ceiling in an antique, traditional-Javanese inspired house in a super-comfortable king size bed? Well, give it a try at Kudus and it will change your life — or at least the way you start your day. Everything about the villa is magnificent; from the vast and generous size of the bedrooms, living pavilion and garden, to the masses of antiques and quality furnishings, to its proximity to the beach.

The kitchen here is also a joy to both look at and cook in if you should feel the need, although with a great chef on call it would be a shame to not let yourself be waited upon. The five-bedroom villa may be both glamorous and highly comfortable with loads of space, but what Villa Kudus gives its guests is a real and unique sense of where they are in the world. Made up of traditional Javanese Joglo structures, albeit with a contemporary touch, there is nothing generic about the place. The wooden shingle roof amplified the sound of the rain to the heights of cosiness as we lay in the king-sized bed, prompting us to get up and get into the pool for a midnight swim in the rain: magical!

As for location, the villa is far enough back from the beach and the main road to be as quiet as a church on a Monday morning, but close enough so that it only takes a couple of minutes to get there. The Legong Keraton Hotel, an old-school Bali favourite, is right there above the beach and is a solid place to eat a pizza, drink a few cold beers and watch the boys and girls ride their waves beneath a setting sun. The waves on the beach can be a bit rough but with ample adult supervision the kids should be in no danger.

Make sure you enjoy a massage from the ladies from the local spa who will come to the villa to administer to your needs right by the pool. For about 12 American dollars they will lull you into submission like you have never known — and for that they deserve a tip.

www.villakudus.com